

Konstantia (Nadia) Papavasileiou graduated from the English Department of the University of Athens and received an MA in Language Teaching, with distinction, from the University of Lancaster. She worked in local language schools and Arsakeia Tositseia Schools and since 2005 she has been working as a permanent teacher of English in the state sector. Having benefited a lot from the various teacher training courses she has attended, she is keen to share that experience with other teachers. She is particularly interested in teaching English to young learners, ESP and integrating drama and literature into everyday teaching.
